

Writing for IT

Target Group: Technical authors

While this course is principally designed for authors writing in a software or IT environment, the content will be helpful for anyone working as a technical author.

Duration: 2 days

Course Overview: In this course, which is particularly aimed at authors writing software documentation, we concentrate on linguistic, style, and structuring aspects relevant for writing for IT, for example:

- Identifying your audience: Who needs your content and why?
 - Creating UI texts and online help
 - Creating attractive documents
 - Principles of structuring
 - Style and word choice
 - Writing coherent sentences and paragraphs

Course Methodology: In addition to classroom training, we offer our courses as remote training units. As our courses have a modular design, we can tailor our content to your location and working schedules. For example, we can offer regular weekly training sessions using video or telephone conferencing as an alternative to classroom training.
